Al-Mutanabbi Street Exhibit runs through Oct. 31

On March 5, 2007, a car bomb was exploded on Al-Mutanabbi Street in Baghdad. Al-Mutanabbi Street is in a mixed Shia-Sunni area. More than 30 people were killed and more than 100 were wounded. Al-Mutanabbi Street, the historic center of Baghdad bookselling, holds bookstores and outdoor bookstalls, cafes, stationery shops, and even tea and tobacco shops. It has been the heart and soul of the Baghdad literary and intellectual community.

The inventory of Al-Mutanabbi Street was as diverse as the Iraqi population, including literature of both Iraq and the Middle East, history, political theory, popular novels, scholarly works, religious tracts, technical books, poetry, mysteries; even stationery and blank school notebooks could be purchased on this street, as well as children's books, comics, and magazines.

This project is both a lament and a commemoration of the singular power of words. The work on display makes visible the literary bridge that connects us, made of words and images that move back and forth between the readers in Iraq and ourselves. These books will show the commonality of Al-Mutanabbi Street with any street, anywhere, that holds a bookstore or cultural institution.

Environmental Courses, open to the public

Citizen Engagement in the Nisqually Watershed

The course will include a discussion of the environmental, social, and political contexts of the watershed, as well as a trip to the Longmire Museum in Mount Rainier National Park to explore the source of the river. Participants will tour the Alder Dam to discuss the effects of dams and agriculture on salmon habitat, and visit the Nisqually Tribal Elders and the Nisqually Tribe's salmon recovery program manager.

Laws and Land Use Designations in the Puyallup Watershed

The course will begin with a presentation by the timber, fish, and wildlife biologist for the Puyallup Tribe. Participants will visit Sunrise Visitor Center, and travel along route 410 with an employee from the Department of Natural Resources to discuss forestry laws, land use designations, and management practices. A boat tour of Commencement Bay and mouth of the Puyallup River are also planned.
