University of Puget Sound welcomes applications from freshman, transfer, and graduate students. This booklet explains Puget Sound admission procedures, academic offerings, and general information.

The University and Community
University of Puget Sound is a privately endowed institution with a full-time, on-campus enrollment of approximately 2,600. Small classes and ready access to facilities produce a vibrant teaching/learning environment. The student-to-faculty ratio is 11:1, which allows students to work closely with their professors. For more than 100 years, University of Puget Sound has attracted students seeking a high-quality education to its distinguished academic community. Accredited by the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools, the university aims at excellence in the arts and sciences, as well as in three professional schools. The Puget Sound Basin in the northwest corner of the United States is one of the nation’s finest recreational havens. To the northwest of campus, across Puget Sound, rise the Olympic Mountains. Mount Rainier, 60 miles to the east, dominates the craggy horizon formed by the Cascade Range. The city of Tacoma, a safe, clean community of 200,000 people, lies 35 miles south of Seattle and 35 miles north of Olympia, Washington’s state capital. Both cities are easily accessible from Tacoma by an interstate freeway. The 97-acre university campus is located in a quiet residential area on Commencement Bay. Students enjoy ready access to three national parks, 2,500 miles of inland saltwater shoreline, eight major snow-ski facilities, and one of the few coniferous rain forests in the world.

Majors and Degrees
University of Puget Sound offers undergraduate programs of study leading to the Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, and Bachelor of Music degrees. Academic majors include art; biochemistry; biology; business; chemistry; classics; communication studies; comparative sociology (anthropology, sociology); computer science; economics; English; exercise science; foreign languages (options in French, German, Spanish, and international affairs; course offerings in Chinese, Greek, Japanese, and Latin); geology; history; international political economy; mathematics; molecular and cellular biology; music; natural science; philosophy; physics; politics and government; psychology; religion; science, technology, and society; special interdisciplinary major; and theatre arts. Graduate degrees are offered by the School of Education and the School of Occupational Therapy and Physical Therapy.
Student Life

Approximately 25 percent of the university’s 2,600 undergraduate students are residents of the Pacific Northwest. The other 75 percent come from all over the United States and 14 countries. Campus housing is provided for about 70 percent of the student body. Many students find living accommodations in the neighboring community or commute from other parts of the city. On-campus housing is available for single undergraduate students only.

Academic Facilities

Collins Memorial Library, which houses more than 500,000 bound volumes and periodicals, a 137,000 microfilm library, and 290,000 government documents, is the university’s principle academic resource center. Other major academic facilities include Kittredge Art Gallery, Schneebeck Concert Hall, Norton Clapp Theatre, Gordon D. Alcorn Arboretum, Slater Museum of Natural History, and the Thompson Science Complex.

Academic Calendar

The academic year is divided into two semesters, beginning late August and January. A normal academic load is four units (typically four classes) during the fall and spring terms. A limited number of courses are offered during the summer term.

When other indicators (prior coursework for example) establish that a student can be successful at Puget Sound, where the language instruction is English, the TOEFL requirement may be waived.

F. Other Documents: Submit other credentials as the department or the school in which you wish to study specifies in its statement of requirements for admission.

Campus Visit Information

You have a standing invitation to visit University of Puget Sound. Please contact the Office of Admission directly to arrange your visit. We look forward to seeing you!

Year-round, visitors are welcome to tour the campus with a student guide and meet with a member of the admission staff.

During the academic year, visitors are also encouraged to visit classes, share a meal with a current student, talk with a professor, attend a sporting or performing arts event and stay overnight in a residence hall. Although interviews are not required for admission, potential applicants may find it helpful to discuss their educational goals. In turn, we will have the opportunity to include interview information in the application process.

With advance notice (preferably at least two weeks), we are happy to arrange a visit to meet your needs. If you are unable to make advance arrangements, we would still enjoy the opportunity to introduce you to our campus.

Admission staff and student tour guides greet visitors every Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and most Saturday mornings by appointment from August to April. Saturday appointments are not available in May, June, and July. The Office of Admission is closed Sundays and during Thanksgiving and winter holidays.

Class Visits

When classes are in session, you are welcome to attend. Class visits require advance notice (preferably two weeks) and are generally available from September through November and from February through April.
