Puget Sound faculty members are teacher-scholars. This publication is a glimpse into the continuing engagement with the life of the mind that faculty members model for students, in and beyond the classroom. Any such publication is but a snapshot—this compilation is of voluntarily submitted work completed in the 2011–2013 academic years—but I hope this one is useful for several audiences.

For students, I hope that you will have an opportunity to see the kinds of academic work that engage faculty members when we are not involved directly in teaching or advising interactions with you. Perhaps you will recognize work listed here because it has found its way into the classroom, as some faculty scholarship does. Perhaps you will find other work listed that sounds interesting, but is beyond the scope of your classroom experience. I encourage you to talk with professors about their scholarship.

For faculty colleagues, I hope that this compilation will prompt conversations about new teaching collaborations, interdisciplinary projects, further scholarship, and other dimensions of the intellectual life of the campus. Congratulations on the ways that—through research, writing, creating, exhibiting, performing, and engaging civic scholarship—you are, each in your own way, contributing to the advancement of human knowledge and understanding. I encourage you to read and engage one another's work and to enjoy the collegial interactions that will follow.

For other colleagues and the broader community, I hope that this publication illustrates the vitality of academic conversation at Puget Sound. There is, of course, much additional intellectual work not listed in detail: the 157 stipended research students in the sciences, arts, humanities, and social sciences who have been mentored by faculty members over the past two summers; the 97 students who have been guided in their funded independent projects during the academic years; the on-campus talks; the many dimensions of Puget Sound’s distinctive Race and Pedagogy Initiative and Sound Policy Institute; the professional service that faculty members provide to regional, national, and international academic organizations; the lectureships, guest artist residencies, and workshops organized and hosted for the campus; and the awards earned for academic achievement, innovation, professional affiliations, and community service. Your interest in Puget Sound and your support—from assistance provided by a departmental staff member to endowment contributed for faculty development—make the intellectual work of the faculty and the fulfillment of our mission as a liberal arts college possible.
PUGET SOUND is a 2,600-student, national undergraduate liberal arts college in Tacoma, Washington, where students from 44 states and 16 countries are invited to undertake bold journeys of personal and intellectual discovery supported by a welcoming community. Inspired by a remarkable faculty pursuing research and scholarship in more than 50 traditional and interdisciplinary areas of study, the campus community is united by a desire to creatively meet worthy challenges and make a difference in the world.

This mission of the university is to develop in its students capacities for critical analysis, aesthetic appreciation, sound judgment, and apt expression that will sustain a lifetime of intellectual curiosity, active inquiry, and reasoned independence. A Puget Sound education, both academic and cocurricular, encourages a rich knowledge of self and others; an appreciation of commonality and difference; the full, open, and civil discussion of ideas; thoughtful moral discourse; and the integration of learning, preparing graduates to meet the highest tests of democratic citizenship. Such an education seeks to liberate each person’s fullest intellectual and human potential to assist in the unfolding of creative and useful lives.

CIVIC SCHOLARSHIP AT UNIVERSITY OF PUGET SOUND

University of Puget Sound is committed to its role as an intellectual asset within the community, serving as a center for faculty and student research and scholarship on a broad array of issues. In partnership with community members and organizations throughout the region, numerous projects and programs have taken shape, including three signature initiatives:

Civic Scholarship Initiative
pugetsound.edu/csi

The Civic Scholarship Initiative connects Puget Sound’s faculty and students with citizens of the south Puget Sound region in projects of mutual concern. By investing the college’s intellectual capital, the initiative provides real-world laboratories for faculty and students to pursue their research and teaching objectives while partnering with regional organizations to solve problems, develop policy, and educate the public on issues of regional and national significance. Programs include the Freedom Education Project Puget Sound, which is providing liberal arts coursework to the Washington Correctional Center for Women; Transfer Development Rights, which addresses responsible management of urban growth; the Pierce County Economic Index; Puget Sound Brass Camp; The Road Home: Homeless Policy for Pierce County; Senior University in affiliation with Franke Tobey Jones Residence; summer camps for constrained limb therapy and for children with developmental needs; and the Zina Linnik Project to create safe parks for children in Tacoma.

Race and Pedagogy Initiative
pugetsound.edu/raceandpedagogy

A collaboration between Puget Sound and South Sound communities, the Race and Pedagogy Initiative seeks to educate students and teachers at all levels to think critically about race and to act to eliminate racism. Since 2006 the initiative has served as an incubator, catalyst, and forum for a variety of programs and projects. Following the 2010 Race and Pedagogy National Conference, which welcomed to campus more than 1,000 presenters and participants from colleges and universities across the nation, regional schools and community organizations, and artistic and theatrical performances, RPI has continued to host gatherings that spur critical dialogue. These include the April 2012 Youth and Family Summit, keynoted by Michael Benitez Jr.; the October conference on Race, Education, and Criminal Justice, keynoted by Ericka Huggins; and the 2012–13 series of residencies and public presentations under the theme of American Voices: Invisibility, Art, and Educational Justice. Led by educator-in-residence Thelma Jackson, the series included guest artists Paul Rucker, Chiyuki Shannon, and Walidah Imarisha.

Sound Policy Institute
pugetsound.edu/soundpolicy

Sound policies restore and sustain the natural environment in balance with a healthy, prosperous, and just community. The Sound Policy Institute builds the capacity of individuals and groups, both on campus and in the Puget Sound region, to actively and effectively engage in environmental decision-making. The institute provides opportunities for the inclusion of community-based learning objectives in the coursework and research of the college's Environmental Policy and Decision Making Program; the integration of "big ideas" related to sustainability into the teaching and learning of faculty members from across academic disciplines and higher education institutions; and community member engagement in lifelong environmental learning experiences through courses, field trips, training sessions, and other events.
WASHINGTON PROFESSOR OF THE YEAR

The only national initiative specifically designed to recognize excellence in undergraduate teaching and mentoring, the Professor of the Year program is administered by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching and the Council for Advancement and Support of Education. Puget Sound faculty members have been honored seven times, more than any other college in Washington.

Karl Fields (2012)
Professor, Politics and Government

A member of the Puget Sound faculty since 1990, Karl Fields is a Distinguished Professor of Politics and Government. Fluent in Chinese and conversant in Japanese, his teaching focuses on comparative politics, comparative political economy, and the politics and societies of Asia. He chaired the politics and government department from 2000 to 2004, and served as director of the Asian Studies Program from 1997 to 2000, and 2005 to the present. His scholarship is informed by regular teaching, lecturing, and research in China, Hong Kong, Korea, Japan, and Taiwan, and travels in the Russian Far East, Thailand, and Vietnam.

PRESIDENT’S EXCELLENCE IN TEACHING AWARD

The Puget Sound President’s Excellence in Teaching Award was established by former trustee Hal Eastman ’60 and his wife, Jacque ’61, to recognize faculty members who demonstrate exceptional teaching skills, independent of accomplishments in scholarship, research, or publication. Recipients are selected for their genuine passion for teaching, an ability to inspire students to learn, a capacity to set high expectations and challenge students to meet them, a respect for students as individuals, an enduring intellectual curiosity, and the capacity for growth, change, and vitality in the classroom and beyond.

John Hanson (2012)
Professor and Department Chair, Chemistry

Professor and chair of the chemistry department, John Hanson joined the faculty of University of Puget Sound in 1990. His teaching and research interests include organic chemistry, computational and bioorganic chemistry, and biochemistry. Cited by students as an enthusiastic and passionate professor, in the past five years Professor Hanson has mentored 11 summer research students, 24 senior thesis research students, and six directed student research projects, with many students going on to present their research findings at national conferences.

DIVERSITY STATEMENT
We acknowledge the richness of commonalities and differences we share as a university community, the intrinsic worth of all who work and study here, and that education is enhanced by investigation of and reflection upon multiple perspectives. We aspire to create respect for and appreciation of all persons as a key characteristic of our campus community, to increase the diversity of all parts of our university community through commitment to diversity in our recruitment and retention efforts, and to foster a spirit of openness to active engagement among all members of our campus community. We act to achieve an environment that welcomes and supports diversity, to ensure full educational opportunity for all who teach and learn here, and to prepare effectively citizen-leaders for a pluralistic world.

EQUAL OPPORTUNITY POLICY
University of Puget Sound does not discriminate in education or employment on the basis of sex, race, color, national origin, religion, creed, age, disability, marital or familial status, sexual orientation, veteran or military status, gender identity, or any other basis prohibited by local, state, or federal laws. This policy complies with the spirit and the letter of applicable federal, state, and local laws, including Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, Sections 503 and 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990. Questions about the policy may be referred to the university’s affirmative action officer (253.879.3991) or the Office of Civil Rights, Department of Education, Washington, D.C., 20202. Information on services for persons with disabilities may be obtained from Peggy Perno, director of disability services (253.879.3395; TTD: 253.879.3399; pperno@pugetsound.edu).
