THERE WITH BELLS ON
Eighteen-year-old Tacoma native Angelina Nockai ’10, a member of the Colville Tribe, has been jingle dancing for 13 years. The jingle dance is performed wearing a dress adorned with 365 bells—for the days in a year, a prayer rolled up in each. Taught by her mother, Angelina danced at the grand opening of Smithsonian’s National Museum of the American Indian. This performance in January was part of a semester-long world theater program that is bringing playwrights, performers, dance troupes, and theater scholars to the campus.
