

◆ CWLT ◆

MISSION

Support faculty members in their teaching and provide opportunities for all Puget Sound
students to achieve their academic goals.

Interested in being a subject tutor or writing advisor in the CWLT?

Highly successful students from all majors are encouraged to apply to become paid writing advisors and subject tutors at the CWLT. Applicants are selected through a competitive process in the spring, and new subject tutors and writing advisors take LC300: Research on Writing and Learning in the fall semester as part of their ongoing professional development at the CWLT.

For more information on student employment applications, visit pugetsound.edu/cwlt.

Submit a paper to the Writing Excellence Competition!

Prizes are awarded each spring to the best papers in the arts and humanities, social sciences, natural sciences and mathematics, first-year seminars, connections, and graduate programs. Submissions are due at the beginning of the spring semester.

For more information about the Writing Excellence Competition, visit pugetsound.edu/cwlt.

The Center for Writing, Learning, and Teaching (CWLT) offers numerous academic support services for Puget Sound students and faculty members.

Resources

Writing Advisors who are selected through a rigorous application process and are specially trained to help students get started on a paper, organize their thoughts, or improve their editing skills.

Subject Tutors in a wide range of subjects who are nominated by professors in their disciplines and are specially trained to help students individually or in small groups.

Peer Academic Consultants to help students develop effective strategies for studying and time management.

Language Partners who work with multi-lingual students to help them navigate the conventions and quirks of academic English writing.

Classes that help students improve their reading efficiency.

Workshops on writing personal statements for graduate and professional school applications.

Resources for writers, including books and handouts on writing, as well as the style manuals for APA, MLA, and Chicago.

Computers for students to use when writing papers and online assignments.

Teaching and learning resources for faculty members, including books and journals, "Wednesday at 4" conversations, in-class workshops, and individual consultation with CWLT faculty.

Events such as the Long Night Against Procrastination, Pi Day, the Drop-in Derby, and the Writing Marathon.

Writing

cwltappointments@pugetsound.edu

The Writing Center is the branch of the CWLT dedicated to helping students improve their academic writing. We're ready to offer a thoughtful response to papers or drafts written for any discipline at any stage of the composing process. Although we don't provide proofreading services, we can help students improve their proofreading skills.

Learning

cwltappointments@pugetsound.edu

The Learning Center offers students opportunities to improve their academic performance and become independent and effective learners. Our services include expert, friendly, free tutoring (either one-to-one or in groups) in accounting/finance, biology, chemistry, computer science, economics, exercise science, foreign languages, math, physics, and statistics.

Teaching

cwlt@pugetsound.edu

Working with campus partners, the CWLT offers weekly "Wednesday at 4" conversations, and facilitates more extended summer workshops on topics related to teaching. We also consult with faculty members and departments working on assessing curriculum, designing writing assignments, and designing new courses.
