

Physical Therapist With An Energetic & Infectious Personality Wanted!

Are you in search on your first PT position where you can learn and grow as a clinician? Are you looking for a place to work where you're excited to get up and go to, bring value and get back from a company you love and a team you respect? Are you in search of a position and company that places an emphasis on retention, engagement, your personal satisfaction and growth?

Rehab United Seattle is a PT practice that prides itself on its culture and community. It has consistently produced client successes stories highlighted by our 5-star rating on Google, where patients have detailed their success working with our staff. We are community and employee focused, where a thriving employee will always be more productive and successful.

We are in search of a physical therapist with an energetic and infectious personality that has a desire to be constant learning, and is open to new ideas and ways of treating. The individual we are in search of will be focused on providing a WOW factor to their clients with outstanding customer service and next level skill. We desire a team member that is passionate about Rehab United Seattle's brand, willing to organically market, and be a part of that growth as a trusted provider in the Seattle area. We wish to find an assertive strong communicator and collaborator with a high drive to accomplish task with the flexibility that our profession often requires...If you want a challenge, while being mentored and supported by this team we encourage you to apply.

Please send your resumes to Kelly Vanhove at kelly@rehabunited.com . New grads are encouraged to apply along with those that will be sitting for their boards soon. This position will remain open for the right candidate to become a member of our team and community. Think that maybe you? Send your resume and let's set a time to chat.