PELVIC FLOOR DIRECTOR

This role is yours to shape!

We're launching a brand-new pelvic health program — and we want a driven DPT to build it from scratch. You'll have full control over protocols, patient care models, and the program's direction. No inheriting someone else's system. Just you, the vision, and our full support.

Pelvic floor training — on us

Not yet certified in pelvic health? We'll cover the full cost of your training (Herman & Wallace, APTA, or equivalent). We're investing in the right person — not just the right credential.

What you'll do

- Design and launch our pelvic floor therapy program for all genders across two outpatient clinics
- Treat patients one-on-one — incontinence, prolapse, pelvic pain, postpartum care, and more
- Build relationships with referring providers and community partners
- Mentor future pelvic health clinicians as the program grows
- Split your time between our Tacoma and Gig Harbor locations

What we're looking for

- DPT license (or eligible) in Washington State — recent grads welcome
- Interest or background in pelvic health (we'll fund your certification)
- Entrepreneurial mindset — you're excited to build, not just maintain
- Strong communication skills and a collaborative spirit

What We Offer

- Competitive salary commensurate with experience
- Comprehensive benefits package
- Continuing education support and professional development opportunities
- Collaborative and supportive work environment
- Flexible scheduling options between our Gig Harbor and Tacoma locations
