

Fujian Hwa Nan Women's College

The University of Puget Sound
English Instructor Position
At Hwa Nan Women's College
In Fuzhou, China
2017-2018

Application forms are available for a ten-month appointment as a teacher of English conversation and composition at Hwa Nan Women's College, a three-year professional school in Fuzhou, Fujian province, China. Fuzhou is a flourishing port city on the coast of central China almost directly across the Taiwan Strait from Taipei. Hwa Nan Women's College has historical ties to the University of Puget Sound, and this position marks a renewed association. Information about Hwa Nan Women's college can be found at <http://www.chinawomenscollege.org/index.html>

The instructorship involves residence at the College for the 2017-18 academic year and teaching in the Department of Applied Languages. The appointment is part of an agreement between the University of Puget Sound and Hwa Nan Women's College whereby the University sends a recent female graduate to teach at the College every year. The position of English instructor will require willingness to abide by the curricular program and procedures of the College, as well as respect and flexibility in adjusting to living in Chinese society.

The candidate selected for the instructorship will live in the Foreign Teachers Residence at the College, with room, board, and basic routine medical coverage provided. University funds in the Charles Garnet Trimble Fund for Chinese Studies provide a fellowship that will cover an ESL course before departure, round-trip air transportation, a policy for emergency medical assistance, a health insurance policy, a travel allowance, and modest but reasonable funds for private use.

APPLICATION DEADLINE: February 19
